

Real skills. Real impact. Right from the start.

Join our graduate program where the skills you learn, enable better lives, right from the start.

Apply now

The APM Allied Health Graduate Program gives you the chance to experience working for one of our many health brands around the country.

If you have a degree in occupational therapy, exercise physiology, physiotherapy, psychology, rehabilitation counselling, or speech pathology, you can apply today for a permanent full-time position.

It's your opportunity to build your skill set and career options in a supportive environment, be part of graduate networking sessions, and benefit from senior leadership team engagement. Then, on completion, you can continue assisting your clients while broadening your experience as a healthcare professional.

Here's what you can expect

A smooth, supported induction to get you on the right track

Our induction program gets you familiar with the business and connected with other APM graduates. Through face-to-face and virtual interactions, and online training, you'll learn about your new team and the work you'll be doing.

Support along the way

As you progress through your program, you'll have a mix of one-to-one support from a mentor, shadowing opportunities and networking events with other APM graduates.

Continual professional development, to grow your skills and knowledge

APM prides itself on investing in its people, so that as we grow, they grow with us, too. Throughout the Graduate Program, you'll be offered a series of learning and development opportunities through various parts of our business.

Experience a variety of case work

Much of the work we do requires us to step out into the community, and some of it requires us to work with different industries and sectors. As a new graduate, you'll rapidly grow your skills and experience through a wide variety of case work.

You'll be creating an impactful and rewarding career

Doing good for the community isn't something reserved for the charitable things you do in your spare time – it's something you can achieve through your work, too. As part of the APM team, you'll create meaningful impact for others and enjoy a bright career path.

Our diversity makes us better

APM is proud to partner with the Australian Network on Disability, Diversity Council of Australia, and the Valuable 500 to support an inclusive culture and workplace for our people.
